The London Times says the fall of Charleston is a victory which will recompense the Unionists for many labors and encourage them to pursue with renewed vigor, the conquest of the South. It believes that although the South is now virtually shut out from the world, it will continue to show unabated obstinacy in defense.

The Daily News contents itself by editorially detailing the operations of Gen. Sherman in a strain of enlogy. The Morning Post argues that Charleston was executed as a strategetic necessity, and says. "Gen.
